

HIS RETREAT
IS RESUMEDKuropatkin Is Now Leaving Mukden

AND IS GOING NORTHWARD

Probable That He Will Make a Determined Stand Against Japanese
At Pass 40 Miles North.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 12.—General Kuropatkin's army again has taken up its retreat. The forces which have been resting at Mukden are now retreating on Tieling, the pass 40 miles north of Mukden, where, it is stated, a stand would be made against the advance which the Japanese might make.

An official despatch received today denies the report that General Mishchenko, who commanded the Russians east at Liao Yang, was killed September 3. Lieut. General Shakhovoi reports that the Japanese have not yet penetrated north Yentai in any considerable numbers. They have, he says, secured large camps on the railway south of there, toward Liao Yang.

How to Catch Crows.

In order to catch crows, which do so much damage to growing crops, Italian farmers place small pieces of meat in conical shaped paper bags and smear the inside of these bags with glue. When the bird puts his head in and finds himself blindfolded he flies upward to an immense height, but falls near his starting place.

WAR MANOEUVERS

ARE AT AN END.

Sham War in Virginia Ends With Grand Review Saturday.—Part of Army Left on Account of Sore Feet.

Corps Headquarters, Gainesville, Va., Sept. 12.—With their fighting at an end, the contesting blue and brown armies went on dress parade. They lined up in columns on an expanse of sloping ground at Wellington, Va., midway between Manassas and Gainesville. Lieutenant General Adna R. Chaffee, chief of staff, was the reviewing officer. He took up a position facing the column in its center and on the crest of the slope.

To the left was the blue army and to his right the brown. General Cobbin, commander of both forces, sat on his horse beside General Chaffee. Back of them were the foreign military attaches, visiting governors and other distinguished visitors. Still farther back was a reviewing stand filled with spectators, and along the whole front of the line, which extended over a mile, were other lookers on.

The infantry, in four columns to each brigade, was arranged one behind the other. Behind them were the cavalry, artillery, hospital and signal corps, an engineers' bridge train and army supply wagons.

Men Looked Amazingly Well. The men presented an amazingly well appearance after their four days of night and day campaigning. This was accounted for by the fact that all of those in both camps who were in any way indisposed were examined by surgeons and received certificates excusing them from the review. It is estimated that more than 10,000 men were excused in this manner.

As soon as General Chaffee took his place the right of the blue column moved to the front and marched past the reviewing officers, then off the field to the rear. The formation was in close columns, and the entire first division passed before the troops of General Bell came forward. The review occupied nearly three hours and was terminated by a lively saber drill by the Seventh cavalry.

State Troops Left For Home. Immediately after the review troop trains were supplied at Wellington, and 8,000 militiamen from the eastern states, including the Maine and Massachusetts regiments, were started on their homeward journey.

After the four days of campaigning—marching along dusty roads, sleeping in the field, fording streams and fighting the enemy—both regulars and militiamen looked decidedly like veterans. In some cases whole regiments were declared unfit for the march to the reviewing ground by the medical officers in charge. The trouble in almost every case was sore feet. The Virginia roads are exceedingly stony, and the marching, which was of an exceedingly strenuous and continuous character, has been executed with accompaniments which weighted the men down.

This work is considered one of the great advantages of the maneuvers. It teaches the national guard of states what actual warfare is, including the hardships of campaigning. It is believed that those who have proved incapable of sustaining the strain and enduring the hard work entailed will drop out of the guard on their return and their places will be taken by others. This, it is believed, will strengthen the organization.

VERMONTERS WOULDN'T BUDGE.

Regiment of Militia Refused to March Saturday in War Manoeuvres.

Wellington, Va., Sept. 10.—There was a full measure of silence around the camps of the New England troops at Thoroughfare last night, the long hiking of the day having completely exhausted both officers and men.

Over bad roads after several days and nights of marching and fighting the New Englanders started early this morning leaving their rolls and haversacks for the wagons to bring along. There was much grumbling last night because of blistered ankles, bramble scratches, stone bruises and hornet stings and the Vermonters got sour-faced and refused to march to the place of spectacular gayety. Their officers commanded and cajoled, but the "Green Mountain Boys" could not be shaken in their determination. If the government wanted to see how well the 1st Vermont looked in soiled khaki the government could send a troop train for their transportation. The train not being provided the 1st Vermont remained in camp at Thoroughfare while the other New Englanders hit the pike.

But the Vermonters were not the only kickers. Everything that wasn't good to say was uttered by scores of men in the 8th Mass. Officers thought the men might feel better after a night's rest, but when the regiment left camp this morning it was shy of Maj. Eldridge's battalion—all but 15, who came here under command of Capt. Canfield of Co. M, refusing to take the march.

Deaths from starvation take place in London at the rate of between thirty and forty every year.

HIS WIFE
DISAPPEAREDBut Jerome Ortelli Has Heard From Her

SHE LEFT LAST FRIDAY

Today Husband Got a Letter—Mysterious Disappearance Had Been Reported to Police.

Jerome Ortelli's wife disappeared last Friday most mysteriously and his own efforts and the efforts of her relatives and the Barre police department failed to account for the mystery. But this afternoon Mr. Ortelli got a letter from her, confirming the suspicion which he held that she had carried out a previous threat and committed suicide. Mr. Ortelli says that his wife has been sick mentally for some time.

After receiving the letter today Mr. Ortelli had a stronger conviction that his wife had committed suicide. The letter was dated at Barre and was received at the Barre post office this forenoon at 8 o'clock. It bade good-bye to her husband and told him not to look for her as he would never find her. Mr. Ortelli is waiting to hear from the woman's sister in Montreal.

The description of the woman supplied by Mr. Ortelli was as follows: "Twenty-three years of age, five feet in height, light complexion, large blue eyes, small features, small figure. When last seen was dressed in navy blue sailor suit, green hat with light blue veil. Carried black shopping bag."

When questioned by a reporter Mr. Ortelli said that his wife had been sick for some time and he feared that she was not in her right mind. He said that she had threatened to drown herself and to go away where no one would find her. He saw her last on Friday morning. Two other parties have reported seeing her on North Main street Friday morning. She appeared to be waiting for an electric car. One of those who claims to have seen her says that she had two suit cases. The police, to whom the disappearance was reported Saturday afternoon, were at a loss to reconcile the fact that the woman intended to commit suicide with the fact that she should carry away the larger portion of her clothing with her, in suit cases. When her belongings were looked over by her husband he found that a large quantity of the woman's clothing was missing. The persons who saw Mrs. Ortelli waiting for the car say that it was between nine and ten o'clock Friday morning.

Mr. Ortelli said that his wife had tried suicide a short time ago and that he had prevented her from carrying out her purpose. She took a quantity of morphine but he got a physician in time to save her life. Mrs. LeClair of Cottage street, the missing woman's mother, was also at a loss to account for her daughter's disappearance.

Mr. and Mrs. Ortelli were married in this city three years ago. The husband is a Swiss and his wife is French. They have a little boy who is two years old.

It was reported on the street this afternoon that the woman had committed suicide in Burlington and her body had been found this forenoon. The Times called up the Burlington chief of police this afternoon and found that no woman had committed suicide there so far as the police knew.

DERAILED ENGINE
WENT OVER BANK

The "Boulder" Ditched on Barre Railroad Spur Track Through the Spreading of Rails.

On account of the spreading of the rails, the Barre railroad engine "Boulder" left the iron on the Batchelder Meadow siding yesterday forenoon, tore down a ten-foot embankment and then buried its nose six feet deep in the dirt. The big iron horse all but tipped over, the floor of the cab being tilted at an angle of thirty degrees. That it did not tip over and roll down the embankment was because the forward end was buried so deep in the dirt. When the engine came to a standstill the fireman, M. L. Aiken, of Marshfield, slid out one door and the engineer, M. G. Sawyer, of this city, climbed out the other. Both had a realization of their narrow escape from serious injury. The fireman, who is new at the business, having started work only two weeks ago, considered himself particularly fortunate as the engine tipped toward his side.

The locomotive was drawing a train of freight cars loaded with granite from the Littlejohn & Milne shed, up the incline to the main track. The accident happened at a curve. Two cars were pulled off the iron at the same time. The locomotive was completely off the iron and at right angles to the track. The rear and the forward parts of it were quite badly damaged. The engine has been out of the repair shop only a month, after having been thoroughly overhauled. The trainmen put out the fire beneath the boiler as soon as possible. There being no appliances here or in Montpelier to get the engine out, word was sent to Wells River for a steel derrick. Yesterday afternoon several workmen were busy digging out the locomotive. The operations were watched by a large crowd, and the occasion was taken advantage of by the amateur photographers to get a view of the "wreck."

FINE VICTORY
FOR RANGERSDefeated Westmounts At Association Foot Ball

BY SCORE THREE TO ONE

Game Was One of the Best Ever Witnessed in This City. Montpeliers
Outclassed in Second Half.

The postponed association foot ball game between the Westmounts of Montreal and the Barre Rangers was played off at the latter's grounds Saturday afternoon, resulting in a victory for the Rangers, score of 3 to 1. It was one of the prettiest, most exciting matches ever witnessed in Barre. The boys from Montreal, by plucky playing time and again snatched the ball from the vicinity of the goal posts. The team work of the Rangers showed the results of hard practice and also a thorough knowledge of the fine points of the game.

In the first half Patterson shot the first goal for Westmounts after 15 minutes of play. Near the end of the half Cunningham after a pretty bit of rushing tied the score with one of the neatest shots in the game. At the end of the first half the score was 1 to 1.

In the second half Westmount seemed to have lost some of the vim and dash which had characterized their playing. After five minutes of play Sherriffs broke the tie and a few minutes later cinched the victory with another goal. The ball remained in Westmount's territory the remainder of the half, the final score being 3 to 1 in favor of the Rangers.

The line-up was as follows:

VERMONT GOLFER DEFEATED.

H. Chandler Egan Wins Amateur Championship Over Frederickson Herreshoff.

Short Hills, N. J., Sept. 10.—While there are many surprises during the amateur championship tournament of the United States Golf Association which began last Tuesday and ended today on the links of the Baltusrol Golf Club, the final result was anticipated from the beginning by many of the close followers of the game.

When H. Chandler Egan of the Ex-moor Country Club of Chicago defeated the young Brooklyn player, Frederick Herreshoff, who attends school near Pottstown, Pa., and who was entered from the Ekwanok Country Club of Manchester, Vt., the general verdict was that the expected had happened, and that the champion of the Western Golf Association had well earned the title and accompanying prizes by clever, clean, consistent work throughout the tourney.

WITHOUT ANY INSURANCE.

Archie McCormick Lost Barn, Ten Tons of Hay and Farming Tools.

Archie McCormick, who works for James Ahearn and who resides at Cutler Corners, lost a barn with practically all its contents yesterday afternoon by fire, without a cent of insurance to cover the loss. About noon he was called by his children who said the barn was afire. Mr. McCormick hurried out to see the building in flames. He was powerless to extinguish the fire, but he was able to lead out his two horses. That was all. The contents of the barn including ten tons of hay and his farming implements were burned to the ground together with the barn.

It is supposed the fire was caused by the children playing with matches. Mr. McCormick estimates his loss at $500.
